WESTERN DEVELOPMENT.

Now that the liberal party have won the elections, the next question is, what will they do with their victory. No doubt changes will be made in the tariff which to some extent will lighten the burden of the producing classes of the country. This may be taken as a foregone conclusion. No doubt the McGreevys and Connollys and their like will find their opportunities and occupation gone, and the strain on the treasury will thereby be greatly relieved. But something more than a readjustment of the tariff and an honest and economical administration is demanded and required by the people of Canada. We had these under Alexander MacKenzie. We had an attempt at them under Sir John Thompson. We will have them under Mr. Laurier, as we would not have had them under Sir Charles Tupper. But in a country having such vast undeveloped resources as Canada, and situated in regard to the capital and markets of the world as Canada is, inhabited by a people of intelligence, industry, energy, enterprise, ambition, such as we have, a policy of progress and development is what is required from every government. No matter how honest and economical a standstill policy may be, it is not the policy that the people want. Mr. MacKenzie was thrown out of power because his policy of development was not sufficiently enthusiastic, the liberals were kept out of power for 18 years mainly because they did not make national development a sufficiently prominent plank in their party platform, and they have now attained to power as much because their opponents had stopped in their work of western development as from any other cause. Everybody can understand that the question of developing our national resources and increasing our productive power is the most important question that can possibly come before the Canadian people and no party that does not make this a prominent plank in its platform need hope to long retain their confidence. There is no doubt that the gigantic steals that accompanied the railway development of the West, and the gigantic failures that resulted from many misdirected efforts at that development, has disheartened the people of Canada to a lamentable extent regarding the possibility of development. But there is no real necessity why robbery should accompany railway enterprise. The costly experiences of sixteen years should be a sufficient safeguard against future mistakes. We can learn by failure as well as by success. And when the failures and successes of the past sixteen years are taken into account there is surely a sufficient store of experience to guide to future success. As a matter of fact the Northwest is not a failure, but a success. The failures have resulted from misdirected efforts on the part of the people and mismanagement on the part of the government, not by reason of the lack of natural advantages. Once experience has decided what each part of the country is best suited for, and that is now fairly well decided the principal need of the country is to overcome distance as far as possible as it can only be overcome by railway competition. This the liberal party must give to the Northwest, or its equivalent—government control of rates—or the Northwest cannot progress and the people of the east will not continue the liberal party in power. There is no good reason why a policy of vigorous development should not accompany honest and economical administration. This is what the West expects from the liberal party and what the east will require as well.

SECULAR EDUCATION.

The Free Press says editorially: The annual address of the Archbishop of Rupert's Land to the Synod touches upon the school question in a manner that some other church bodies would do well to learn from. There is no lack of clearness as to what the aims of his church are in relation to education; and at the same time he avoids committing himself or his church as partisans in a hot election contest. The Archbishop is quite consistent in declaring for the principle that the training of the intellect and of the moral and religious natures of pupils should go hand in hand. He has always maintained that position and his reference to the tendency toward providing for it more effectually in England, France, the United States and Australia, only points out what has for some time been quite evident to all who have watched the progress of events.

In England, where religious instruction has always been a feature of school education, a decided step is being taken further in the same direction, and this by a very large majority in parliament. In France there is a decided reaction from the secular teaching adopted twenty years ago, solely from the experience of its results. The late M. Jules Simon made a touching reference to his efforts to secularize French education and his thankfulness that its non-success was being realized. In the United States some of the objectionable social developments in the population, from a Canadian standpoint, are traced by many to the exclusion of moral training in the schools in most of the states. In South Wales and Tasmania the changes noted by the Archbishop are the direct outcome of unsatisfactory results from the secular system adopted there some years ago.

It is well known that dread of opposition from the English and Presbyterian communities was the only barrier between this province and secular schools in 1890. But anyone who has observed the statistics of the education department since that date will see at a glance that the administrative policy has been steadily in the direction of secularization; and the proposal to the late commission makes it clear that it is still kept in view. It is this proposal to secularize the Manitoba schools, which the government, of which Mr. Martin was a member, did not dare to accomplish in 1890, which was put forward to the commission as a settlement of the school question. In effect it was an attempt to accomplish by negotiation with the Dominion what it was known the people of the province would not approve.

We have said that the Archbishop is consistent in his desire for more and not less religious instruction in schools. Thoughtful parents of all shades of religious thought will agree with him, if allowed to think of the matter apart from this dispute about separate schools. The idea that Roman Catholics should have the privilege of giving their religious instruction in the schools, and not the protestants, is protested against by the Archbishop as well as by the protestants generally. The Manitoba school issue would be much less of a burning question if it were understood that a settlement of it is quite possible, without conferring privileges upon one sect that is not conceded to all. To those who have thought of it, it appears quite feasible, and such a solution will doubtless be sought and found under the plan of settlement outlined by Hon. Hugh John Macdonald in his address to the electors, if he be returned as member for this city on the 23rd.

SEED GRAIN DISTRIBUTION.

The particulars of the distribution of samples of choice seed grain sent from the Central Experimental Farm to the farmers of Canada, for test between January 2nd and May 15th, 1896, are now available. The following has been furnished by Dr. Wm. Saunders, director of experimental farms: The total number of 3-lb. samples distributed is 33,445, which have been sent to different provinces as follows: Ontario, 9,861; Quebec, 12,900; New Brunswick, 2,755; Prince Edward Island, 1,446; Nova Scotia, 2,862; Manitoba, 671; Northwest Territories, 585, and British Columbia, 1,365. There have also been sent out 3,147 one-pound samples of promising varieties of cross-bred and hybrid cereals, all of which have been produced at the experimental farms by cross fertilizing during the past seven or eight years. As the quantities available of these new varieties are as yet small it was found necessary to limit the quantity furnished to each farmer to 1-lb. in each case. These cross-bred cereals have been distributed by provinces as follows: Ontario, 1,194; Quebec, 846; New Brunswick, 351; Prince Edward Island, 112; Nova Scotia, 421; Manitoba, 78; Northwest Territories, 107; and British Columbia, 29. The rule adopted in the distribution this year was to send one sample only to each applicant, and the applications were so numerous that on this basis all the available supplies had been sent out or promised before April 1st, when it was found necessary to close the list. Letters were received later from several thousand applicants who were unavoidably disappointed. Farmers desiring samples should apply for them during January, February, or early in March, while the supply is abundant. From the figures given of the distribution recently closed, it will be seen that more than fifty tons of these samples have been sent out this season free, by mail to farmers, of the Dominion, in response to applications. This branch of the experimental farm work is greatly appreciated.

GENERAL NEWS.

The Battleford Herald says: Up to date Gordon & Iroquois have shipped 2000 more head of stall fed cattle than last year. They expect the number of range cattle that will be exported this year to fully equal to their business of 1895, when 35,000 were sent out.

A telegram from St. John's Newfoundland, June 21st, says: Trouble has broken out on that part of the Newfoundland coast, where the French have fishery rights, between the residents and the French fishermen over the use of cod traps. The English cruiser Mohawk, guardship of this port, has been summoned hastily to the scene, and left at daylight this morning.

The United States crop report places the winter wheat area at 22,794,000 acres, the spring wheat area at 11,825,000, or a total of 34,619,000 acres of winter and spring wheat. Last year the area was 34,047,332 and in 1894 it was 34,892,436 and in 1893 it was 34,629,418 acres. Thus it will be seen that there has not been much variation in the total wheat area of the United States for four years.

We northern people are want to look upon the "Sunny South" as a land entirely free from the visits of Jack Frost. It therefore seems strange to us to read reports about people leaving the state of Florida, on account of the devastation caused there by frost. Nevertheless it is true that a number of people have left that state and abandoned their property on account of the havoc worked by the frost.—Commercial.

The authorities in British Columbia are taking extraordinary precautions to prevent the introduction of insects injurious to fruits. Last year some consignments of apples from the States were destroyed, on the ground that the fruit was infested with injurious insects.—Nursery stock also has been seized for the same reason. The latest report is that a consignment of Australian apples has been seized because infested with insects. Parties who contemplate shipping such goods to British Columbia should therefore make sure their stock is free from insect pests.—Commercial.

Winnipeg Commercial: Mr. Stohart has a curiosity in the fur line, selected from a consignment of fur raw sent to Stohart, Sons & Co., Winnipeg. In this consignment of furs two very peculiar specimens were found, of a kind of fur never before seen. Mr. Stohart showed the skins to some of the largest fur traders here, but they had never seen anything like them. The skins were finally discovered to be what is known as cotton mink. These skins are occasionally found further south, but are very rare here. The fur is a light grey color, turning to white, and is soft and downy, which gives it the name of "cotton" mink. Mr. Stohart has had the skins tanned as curiosities.

South Edmonton News: The News has been accused by some of being a turncoat. However this is not the case, as this paper has been an independent journal since its inauguration and always took the stand it thought best for the people's interests. In local matters we have been outspoken, but in Dominion election, local feeling must be buried and work for the man. This we have done and if Laurier takes a right and just stand on the school question he has, from this forward, our hearty support. We consider that it is better to be right some of the time rather than wrong all the time and hence we hold to ourselves the privilege of taking whatever stand we choose, irrespective of partyism. If this kind of honesty and fair dealing is not appreciated we are ready to take the consequences.

A London despatch of June 21st, says: Concurrent advice from Cape Town are to the effect that the whole of Mashonaland is in insurrection. Troops have been hurriedly shipped to Cape Town to go by way of Berra to relieve the British. Throughout Rhodesia the British only hold territory within a mile of the forts. Settlers everywhere have been murdered by the Matabeles. The troops already in the country find great difficulty in conducting operations owing to the deficiency of food and horses. A long and desultory guerrilla warfare is certain. This will involve the expenditure of funds from the imperial exchequer and the subsequent abolition of the charter of the British South African Co.

A London, telegram June 22nd, says: Official investigation of the loss of the Drummond Castle will not be an arduous affair, since only three survivors remain to tell the little they know about the deplorable calamity. The charts indicate clearly that the vessel was out of her course and running directly toward the rocks. The Castle line had been fortunate previously, this being the first loss of life for which it is responsible. Probably the effect of the disaster will be to alter the sailing courses in returning from the Cape. Vessels have been accustomed to run close to Ushant in order to be reported in time to enable the officials at Plymouth to prepare for their arrival. As the coast around Brest, while well provided with lighthouses, is dangerous in misty weather, the Castle company will be likely to caution its captains to give it a wider berth hereafter.

Speaking at the banquet of the Congress of Chambers of Commerce in London, England, the right Hon. Joseph Chamberlain, Colonial Secretary, said: "The Empire could not exist one day without commerce. If I were to be asked whether Great Britain would follow the cold empires, and like them perish and sink like some of our rivals into a condition of obscurity, I confess that the answer would not depend upon what will be done by the people of these islands, but rather by the eventual determination of Great Britain, and upon the arrangements which they may make to bind us together. A closer union is something more material than sentiment. Am I wrong in thinking that the colonies share our feelings to the full, that they have no idea of setting adrift from the mother country? We ask you from colonies to attach yourselves closer to us. It is not to a decrepit ruin that you are asked to cling. I think you will agree that there are no signs here of waning life or decaying power. The continuous growth of this country is almost as remarkable as the growth of those sister nations which we call colonies. It is better for your commerce and our commerce that we should all alike share in the free interchange of commodities between 300,000,000 people than that we should be engaged in the erection of barriers and exciting competition from which all shall be sufferers. The forces of cohesion are greater than the forces of disruption."

William Dalby, fireman of Bay Street fire hall Toronto, was arrested on polling day on the charge of personating Arthur Lewis.

A. E. Logie and N. Rosenblatt were arrested in Winnipeg for attempted impersonation on polling day.

In one polling division in Winnipeg where 300 votes were on the list only 70 ballots were supplied. These were used by 10:15 and it took over an hour to find the chief returning officer to get a further supply. The same thing happened at three other localities in Winnipeg all of which were considered strongholds for Martin.

Ex-Governor McKinley has been selected republican candidate for the United States presidency and Mr. Hobart, of New Jersey, for the vice-presidency. The chief plank of the party are as might be expected, high protection, and a maintenance of the gold standard in opposition to the free coinage of silver, except by international agreement with the leading commercial nations of the world. The national democratic convention will meet at Chicago on July 7, when the democratic candidates will be nominated.

THE HERALD EXPLAINS.

In its issue of the 24th after endeavoring to explain away Mr. Cochran's defeat the Calgary Herald goes on to say:

"It would be decidedly refreshing to see an election in Alberta conducted between two gentlemen on an equal footing as regards speaking ability, and with money and whiskey barred. Such a contest would be a welcome novelty. It would give the country a fair opportunity of deciding impartially as between the two candidates, it would enable us to pronounce intelligently on the great issues of the day, both local and national, and lastly, but by no means least gratifyingly, it would allow the mercenary gentlemen to find their level."

The remarks of the Herald that if money and whiskey were barred in an election it would be enabled to "pronounce intelligently" doubtless explains many of the peculiar utterances of the Herald during the campaign, while the closing sentence of the above extract is excruciatingly funny, coming from such a source.

STONY PLAIN.

Sir—Pursuant to notice a meeting of the electors of Stony Plain was held at Warden school house on the 27th inst. for the purpose of selecting a candidate for the Northwest Assembly. B. Buchard was appointed chairman of the meeting, and S. Truscott, secretary. A large number of electors were present. M. McKinlay, the nominee of Stony Plain, addressed the meeting at some length, and was followed by M. McCauley and T. Hutchings. A vote being taken resulted almost wholly in favor of M. McKinlay.

HEIMINCK v. THE TOWN.

Judgment in this case was given by Judge Scott last week. It will be remembered that the question to be decided was really whether that portion of river lot 8 between Cameron's and Suter's stores was a public highway or not. Two trails were mentioned in the evidence, viz. one north of what is now Jasper Avenue and the other south of it near the top of the river bank. The dispute centred in the southerly trail, and it will be seen that the defence failed to prove several of their contentions. The patent for river lot 8 makes a reservation of "the trail one chain in width" passing through river lot 8. The town claimed that the highway was therefore dedicated to the public use by the crown, and also because McDougall had not interfered with the public right to use the trail before he obtained his patent. The judge did not consider the evidence sufficient to prove that either trail had been dedicated by the crown. The defendant municipality had failed to show conclusively that the southerly trail was the one referred to in the reservation in the patent of river lot 8. The evidence given by plaintiff before the arbitrators in September, 1894, when McDougall street was extended, led to the conclusion that he was contending that the trail was a highway, and a majority of the arbitrators found it was a highway, therefore showing they believed plaintiff's evidence before them, and upon the ground of good faith he should be estopped from denying the truth of the representations he made before the arbitration. Plaintiff showed that the land in question had been assessed by the municipality in 1892, 1893, 1894 and 1895, which he claimed proved that it was not a highway, but the judge does not see how that could affect the matters in question. The letters from the Surveyor-General which were tendered as evidence by plaintiff and objected to, the judge holds to be not admissible as evidence. Judgment for defendant, N. D. Beck, Q. C., for defendant; C. M. Woodworth for plaintiff.

Mr. Heiminck has given notice of appeal.

Advices received by the department of trade and commerce shows that the hay crop both in England and France is very light, this year, therefore the Canadian hay is likely to realize good prices.

Tenders for the fast Atlantic steamship service were received at the high commissioner's office in London up to June 10th, and the package containing them has reached the department of trade and commerce. The tenders will not be opened until Mr. Ives returns to Ottawa.

The Spanish government declares that most of the claims presented by the United States for damage done in Cuba to American citizens are untenable, some of them being ridiculous. One American asks for $25,000 because he contracted colic while imprisoned, and another asks a large indemnity because under similar conditions he caught the smallpox. The Delgado claim is not considered to have been sufficiently proved. The government hopes to be able to disprove most of the claims and largely reduce others.
